Overview

The World Communion Scholarship Program is designed to enable the educational preparation of church and community leaders around the world so that they may serve in the mission of their churches and societies upon completion of their studies. This is done through providing financial support to students in their master's, doctoral or professional level studies at universities or seminaries. Candidates are required to have the written support of their home conferences, and recipients should have the probability of offering 5 years of service to their churches and/or communities. The objective of funding these individuals is to support the preparation of students who will return to their regions to work in the furtherance of Christian mission in the following prioritized areas of emphasis: elimination of poverty, expansion of global health, leadership development, or congregational development. Due to the restrictions on scholarship funding and the high cost of education, we tend to prioritize students who are studying in their own regions.

The World Communion International Scholarship Program is highly selective with approximately 5-10 new international (non-US) recipients each year from around the world. The scholarship range is approximately from $250 US – $12,500 US, depending on the student's related needs and the school expenses. The specific financial request must be substantiated by an official school budget submitted with the application form.

Please note that funding is for the acquisition of only one degree, and that submission of an application does not guarantee a scholarship award. Students will be notified in writing in May/June 2010 as to the outcome of the application process.
